James J. Seymour : Black History Through Blue Eyes: The Debt the World Owes to Africa before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Black History Through Blue Eyes: The Debt the World Owes to Africa:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. RATING AND REVIEW By Mildred Keith It is a well written book and it met my expectations. It is a book that everyone should read then maybe the world would be a better place for all races to get along better.

This book gives an overview of the contribution of Africa and people from Africa to the development of the Old Testament and the New Testament, the first 400 years of Church History, African American religious pioneers, and ends with a plea for racial healing in the Church and society at large.

About the Author James J. Seymour is the Head of the Department of Religion and Philosophy at Saint Augustine's College in Raleigh, North Carolina. This is one of the 116 Historically Black Colleges and Universities in America, founded in 1867 to train former slaves as school teachers and ministers. Dr. Seymour spent 12 years as an educator in Zimbabwe, Africa and speaks in churches and at seminars across the southeastern United States. He holds a Doctor of Ministry Degree from Faith Evangelical Lutheran Seminary, a Masters Degree in Community/Agency Counseling from Fairfield University, Bachelors Degree in Secondary Education from Southeastern College and a Ministerial Diploma from Zion Bible Institute.
