From Brand: I. B. Tauris : Civil Society in the Muslim World: Contemporary Perspectives before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Civil Society in the Muslim World: Contemporary Perspectives:

Even before the events of September 11, 2001, the global discourse on civil society in its varied interpretations and manifestations had caught the attention of citizens and communities across the Muslim world from Iran, Tajikistan, and Indonesia, to the Maghreb. Issues of human rights, pluralism, and gender equity were already at the forefront of the wider quest for participatory politics. This collection is a landmark survey of social and intellectual trends in diverse Muslim contexts.

About the Author Aryn Sajoo has served as an advisor with the Canadian Human Rights Commission on International and Intercultural Issues and subsequently as a consultant-scholar with the Departments of Foreign Affairs and Justice in Ottawa.
