Mr. R. Mark Musser : Nazi Oaks: The Green Sacrifice of the Judeo Christian Worldview in the Holocaust before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Nazi Oaks: The Green Sacrifice of the Judeo Christian Worldview in the Holocaust:

worldview along with "The Occult and the Third Reich" [Jean-Michel Angebert] and the historical, military and political documents both written and on film, the materials to truly understand Nazism and its evil origins and continuation are available. It is very a very apropos study for our current time. I thank the author myself as one who can trace, by documentation from the death camps themselves, my extended 2nd 3rd generations family losses in the holocaust for an angle of understanding that has not come into the discussion previously, (that I knew of). My only clarification is that I have a different approach to Christian theology. He is decidedly dispensational, whereas I am more classical reform although in affinity with the spiritual and supernatural. 3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Gallno Mark Musser makes a compelling case that the Motivating Philosophies of the Nazis have survived and thrived. Today the deeply pagan view of nature is resulting in a willingness to oppress and destroy people, particularly Christian or Jewish, in order to serve the ruthless god of evolution and nature. 4 of 4 people found the following review helpful. Excellent overview of the phisosophical history that led up to ... By Thomas cook Excellent overview of the phisosophical history that led up to our modern environmental movement. A very anti-human philosophy, that will try to control every aspect of our lives, if it is not resisted.

Nazi Oaks details the anti-Semitic historical background to the early German green movement of the 1800s that was later absorbed by the Nazi Party in the 1930s and 40s. While many histories have decried the industrial nature of the holocaust, such views cannot explain the motive behind the greatest crime committed in the 20th century. The holocaust itself was carried out under a green cover because Nazi racism was largely rooted in the Social Darwinism of German Romanticism that laid the ecological foundations for what today is otherwise known as environmentalism. As an important ingredient of the argument, "Nazi Oaks" also demonstrates the anti-Christian bias of the environmental movement in America which paralleled the anti-Semitic bias in Germany during the 1800s. Nazi Oaks describes why the holocaust is best understood as a modernized form of human sacrifice carried out under biological/ecological camouflage that is rooted in the sacrificial oak imagery of ancient paganism. The word "holocaust" itself means "whole burnt offering."

"Nazi Oaks is a tour de force, patiently accurately unearthing the explicitly anti-Biblical worldview and philosophical roots of modern environmentalism in the renewal of pagan nature worship inherent in German Romanticism a la Goethe and Wagner, racism a la Haeckel, Existentialism a la Heidegger, and Nihilism a la Schopenhauer and Nietzsche. If, as the Bible says, good fruit cannot come from a bad tree, and bad company corrupts good morals, then it's time for Christian--indeed for all--environmentalists to take a sober look at the roots and branches of the tree on which they perch. Rev. Musser's book shows both historically and philosophically how and why ecologism bore fruit in Nazi totalitarianism, racism, and the Holocaust, why those dangers remain inherent in modern environmentalism, and why ecologism's worldview remains incompatible with Judeo-Christian morals. It also shows how and why ecologism led then, as it does now, to the corruption of science and its enslavement to political ideology. Those who read Nazi Oaks will be surprised, and shocked, to see how even many of their heroes were nourished by the sap of that tree, and how heavily European and North American environmentalism today remain tied to and ideologically predetermined by the anti-Christian roots from which it sprang. Thoroughly documented and insightfully argued, this book shows all the earmarks of having been written by someone who has become complete master of the ideas and the history he explains." Dr. E. Calvin Beisner, Founder and National Spokesman, The Cornwall Alliance for the Stewardship of Creation. About the Author In 1989, Mark Musser graduated from the Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington, one of the premier environmental institutions in the country. In 1994, Mark graduated from Western Seminary in Portland, Oregon with a Master of Divinity with a special emphasis upon New Testament Greek. Mark is married to Caren. They have three children Rachel, Alex, and Paul. Mark and his family were missionaries to the former Soviet Union for 7 years. He is now a pastor in Olympia, Washington. Mark was also employed by the Building Industry Association of Washington in Olympia as a Stormwater Field Representative between 2005-2010 where he worked on environmental policy and stormwater education. Mark continues to work on the mission field in the former Soviet Union as a Bible college professor working with James F. Myers Ministries, and is also an adjunct professor for Chafer Theological Seminary. He is further actively involved with Discipleship Makers Multiplied (DM2) both locally at home and abroad. Mark is a contributing author for the American Thinker, and has written a number of articles for other national websites. Mark is a conference speaker, and writes for the Cornwall Alliance, which is a coalition of clergy, theologians, religious leaders, scientists, academics, and policy experts committed to bringing a balanced biblical view of stewardship to the critical issues of environment and development. Mark is also the author of Wrath or Rest: Saints in the Hands of an Angry God, which is a theological primer/commentary focusing on the difficult warning passages found in the book of Hebrews.
