Kolig : New Zealand's Muslims and Multiculturalism (Muslim Minorities) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised New Zealand's Muslims and Multiculturalism (Muslim Minorities):

The book offers an ethnography of the Muslim minority in New Zealand with special emphasis on policy aspects relevant to the integration of Muslims in the host society. The book also discusses many other issues, such as Muslim political representation, inner coherence of the Muslim community, differentiated citizenship, gender issues and gender equality, and points of friction with the host society.

This book should be of interest to all who are concerned with the Muslim diaspora as well those concerned with any of the general issues discussed. William Shepard in Contemporary Islam. Dynamics of Muslim Life (2010). "This book should be of interest to all who are concerned with the Muslim diaspora as well those concerned with any of the general issues discussed." William Shepard in Contemporary Islam. Dynamics of Muslim Life (2010). From the Back Cover Issues of integration, multiculturalism and policies of ethnic and religious minority rights have gained greatly in significance in recent years, especially in relation to Muslims. This book deals with the Muslim minority in New Zealand, with special emphasis on policy aspects relevant to the integration of Muslims in the host society. The book also discusses many other issues, among which are Muslim political representation, inner coherence of the Muslim community, effects of public policies, differentiated citizenship, gender issues and gender equality, and points of friction with the encapsulating host society, including the effects of sharia application, radicalism and the fallout of the Danish cartoon affair. About the Author Erich Kolig is a retired New Zealand social anthropologist and a former Visiting Professor of Cultural Anthropology at Vienna University. He has authored and edited several books and volumes and many articles on indigenous politics, New Zealand Muslims, radical Islam in Indonesia and Australian Aboriginal culture. His field research was carried out, mainly, in Afghanistan, Australia, Austria, Indonesia, New Zealand and Vanuatu. At present, he is an Honorary Fellow in Religious Studies at Otago University, New Zealand.
