I read one each morning and I am trying to live his very, very practical advice. 5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. Newman's Anglican Sermons By Lex Orandi Newman's Anglican Sermons are an important guide to Newman's spiritual and theological development. These sermons were all written when Newman was an Anglican but if you did not know this you would think they were Roman Catholic. Newman believed that it necessary to believe in a "creed" and his sermons are concerned with our relationship with God. For Newman, faith alone was not sufficient. It was important to also live a life in accordance with historical religious values. Newman had a life long battle with the ideas of "Liberalism" and many of his sermons tried to counteract this trend. Each sermon is relatively short and the book can be read over an extended period of time. A suggestion is to read a sermon once a day or twice a week. Each sermon takes a while for the full message to sink in. We are fortunate that these sermons of Newman have been preserved. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. TyposBy just wondering If your budget's like mine, you can struggle through the typos and confusing layout, such as misplaced paragraphs and headings. Just keep asking yourself, "how much did it cost you?"

Not illustrated. 1869 Excerpt: "...life unto life," and foretelling the growth of "evil men and seducers " after his departure.<sup>2</sup> 12. Observe the agreement of sentiment in the following texts: St. James, taught by his Lord and Master, says, " Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves." St. Paul nearly in the same words, "Not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified."<sup>3</sup> Again, did we not know whence the following passages come, should we not assign them to St. James?" God will render to every man according to his deeds; to them, who by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory, and honour, and immortality, eternal life; but unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation, and wrath.... for there is no respect of persons with God." This, as well as the text just cited, is to be found in the opening of that Epistle, in which St. Paul appears most to differ from St. James; now observe how he closes it. "Why dost thou judge thy brother? And why dost thou set at nought thy brother? For we shall all stand before the judgment-seat of Christ.... Every one of us shall give account of himself to God." Again, in 1 John xviii. 37. 2 1 Tim. vi. 13. 2 Cor. ii. 16. 2 Tim. iii. 13. 3 James i. 22. Rom. ii. 13. another Epistle: "We must all be made manifest before the judgment-seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we persuade men."<sup>1</sup> 13. St. John, after our Lord's example, implies especial praise upon those who follow an unmarried life, involving the letter in the spirit, as is freque...
