David Frankfurter : Pilgrimage and Holy Space in Late Antique Egypt (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Pilgrimage and Holy Space in Late Antique Egypt (Religions in the Graeco-Roman World):

This collection of essays by ancient historians, Egyptologists, Coptologists, and historians of religions covers the Egyptian and Jewish backgrounds of Coptic pilgrimage, its major shrines, and diverse responses to it in sermon and literature.

"The volume is important and should be in every research library." James E. Goehring, "Religious Studies," 2000. "Some aspects of pilgrimage addressed here, such as pilgrim chants, have only rarely, if at all, been discussed elsewhere. As we have learned to expect from David Frankfurter, this collection evidences a steadfast commitment to a "regional approach to Christianity and other developing religions." David Frankfurter is surely to be congratulated for bringing together a collection of essays representing a broad array of the fascinating new approaches to late antique pilgrimage." Blake Leyerle, "Church History," 2000. "...handsomely produced an exciting collection." Philip Rousseau, "Journal of Ecclesiastical History."
