Bluma Goldstein : Reinscribing Moses before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Reinscribing Moses:

Heinrich Heine, Franz Kafka, Sigmund Freud, Arnold Schoenberg--all were Jews who considered themselves more European than Jewish. Yet their experience of anti-Semitism and injustice undermined a full commitment to their native German or Austrian heritage. Their writings about Moses are the focal point in this eloquent book about Jewish identity and assimilation, tradition and cultural allegiance.
